

Transmission-Based Precautions for Acute Care Facilities

When a multidrug-resistant organism (MDRO) is identified, infection prevention precautions are critical to ensure patient/resident safety. Public health professionals and clinicians can use this decision tree to identify appropriate precautions to take following the identification of a novel or targeted MDRO in an acute care facility.

