

NACCHO Members Make a Difference

November 22 is Public Health Thank-You Day. NACCHO joins public health organizations across the country to recognize the outstanding work of public health professionals. On behalf of NACCHO's board of directors, officers, and staff, we thank local health officials and local health department staff for all of their work supporting the health and equity of their communities this year. We especially want to thank our members that have volunteered their time, energy, and expertise to help fulfill NACCHO's mission in many different ways: through responses to requests for information, service on committees and advisory groups, and appointed and elected positions.

Hundreds of staff members from local health departments throughout the United States serve on over thirty NACCHO subject-matter advisory groups and committees. Volunteers guide

NACCHO's projects and priorities and work with NACCHO toward a vision of health equity and well-being for people in their communities.

We are grateful for the enthusiasm and dedication volunteers bring to NACCHO. Their important contributions make a difference to NACCHO, local health departments, and the country's health.

Listed below are NACCHO's advisory group volunteers. For more information, visit <https://www.naccho.org/membership/advisory-groups>.
