Mission Ready Packages

National efforts to improve emergency managers' ability to quickly identify response resources has resulted in the development of Mission Ready Packages (MRPs). MRPs are pre-identified response resources that clearly outline the capabilities of the resources, costs associated with the response, limiting factors, and other information that helps an emergency planner quickly assess the available resources. Although MRPs were designed to support the Emergency Mutual Assistance Compact, there is value in using the model to catalog and pre-identify MRC resources and capabilities at the local, regional, or state level.
