Understanding Community Recovery

- Recovery is the process of restoring the community after a public health emergency.
- It involves rebuilding infrastructure, restoring health and social services, and addressing long-term health impacts.
- Recovery can take months or even years.

MRC's Unique Role in Recovery

- MRC units are local, trained, and flexible.
- Volunteers can address both clinical and non-clinical needs.
- MRCs are trusted community assets.

How We Came To Be

- COVID-19 Exposed Gaps: WNC hospitals and health departments were overwhelmed and understaffed; volunteer coordination was ineffective.
- Community Response: A grassroots Google Form received thousands of volunteer responses—highlighting untapped local support and systemic volunteer access issues in rural areas.
- Proven Need: Data from a 2022 needs assessment showed healthcare access disparities, including provider shortages, transportation barriers, and disability prevalence.
- Local & Stakeholder Support: Strong backing from communities, health agencies, emergency services, and universities affirmed the need for a dedicated MRC.
- Official Formation (2023): After rigorous planning, stakeholder engagement, and federal approval, APP MRC was officially launched.

How We Are Being

Active & Growing: Since Hurricane Helene (2024), volunteer engagement surged. The unit now supports disaster response, public health outreach, and resource mapping.

Sustainable Future: With MRC STTRONG grant funding and university support, the unit is building a scalable model with branding, staff, and strategic communications.

When PFA is Not Enough: Skills for Psychological Recovery (SPR)

- Developed by the National Child Traumatic Stress Network and the National Center for PTSD, SPR is an evidence informed modular approach to help children, adolescents, adults, and families in the intermediate (weeks-months) period after disasters and terrorism.
- SPR is similar to PFA in that you don't have to be a mental health professional to provide SPR.
- Although, unlike PFA you need to be supervised by a mental health professional.

MnTIER (Minnesota Trauma-Informed Emergency Response & Recovery)

MnTIER provides an overarching framework for post-disaster planning that recognizes the impact of trauma on the disaster responders and the communities they serve by providing actionable strategies to mitigate harm and build resilience at both the responder, team, and organizational level.
