

2018 Local Health Department of the Year Award

LHD of the Year Award
presented by
NACCHO

NACCHO's vision is health, equity, and security for all people in their communities. Local health departments work daily to realize this vision through their broad mandate for disease prevention, health promotion and health protection. The Local Health Department (LHD) of the Year Award is intended to recognize outstanding work conducted by LHDs around the nation. It is an opportunity to share the success of our colleagues, and celebrate their achievements in the national spotlight of our annual conference.

The theme for the 2018 LHD of the Year Award is Chief Health Strategist. Through their leadership and service, the Chief Health Strategist unites community stakeholders and leverages resources to prevent death, disease, and disability; addresses emerging threats to health, security, and equity; and eliminates the social and structural injustices that result in health disparities. The deadline to submit applications Friday, April 27, 2018 at 11:59 PST.

Criteria

A winning application will outline how to build a broad base of public and private support; and develop constituencies that can contribute knowledge, connections, resources, and financial support to further enhance community and population health. Strong applications will feature a combination of strategies and accomplishments. Examples of health department approaches and activities that may be included in submissions for this award are presented below.

- Highlight strategies that identify formal and informal partners and stakeholders, develop new partnerships, build consensus, and align resources to achieve shared goals to improve population health and public health overall; Demonstrate the integration of evidence-based practices in the approaches taken that derive from scientific research as well as public health practice informed evidence ;
- Enhance public health system transformation with community, business sector, and stakeholders through coordinated efforts to identify and address issues affecting community health;
- Illustrate successful examples of collaborations for conducting health impact assessments, community health improvement plans, community health assessments, and campaigns that reduce or eliminate poor social and economic conditions for marginalized groups in a community;
- Explain how Chief Health Strategists are involved in their state and local initiatives to transform the healthcare system in ways that impact public health outcomes, e.g., serving on population health councils for State Innovation Model initiatives, and providing community outreach and referral services to link community members to health exchanges;
- Demonstrate collaborative approaches to the delivery of clinical care with emphasis on strengthening the preventive aspects of medicine, disease control measures, and collection and use of data to effectively target and deliver health and public health services;
- Showcase proven techniques that enhance capacity of Chief Health Strategists and other organizations in the community to conduct research and share knowledge about their communities in effective ways; and

- Discuss examples of building trust between the Chief Health Strategist, clinical providers, and other community partners to effect real, lasting change that brings people together to solve health problems and improve population health.

Important Information:

The successful LHD will be a current, active (dues-paying) member of NACCHO.

- Awards will be based on the quality of the application and achievement(s) described determined solely at the discretion of NACCHO.
- Separate awards will be granted to LHDs based on population size, i.e., small (<25,000-49,999), medium (50,000-499,999), large (500,000 and above).
- Up to three awardees (Gold, Silver, and Bronze) will be selected for each LHD size category. Award recipients will be notified in the spring and will be recognized at the 2018 NACCHO Annual Conference.
- Applicants are required to pay an application fee (one fee per application) to cover administrative and program maintenance costs. Fees must be paid as part of the applicant's submission process and are based on the size of the LHD—small ($35), medium ($65), large ($95).

How to Submit

To submit an application, visit application.naccho.org. Payment is required prior to submitting an application. Please email membership@naccho.org with any questions or concerns.

In the application below, you will be asked to describe the following in no more than 2,000 words:

1. Implementation: Summarize how the LHD implemented the work, including resources used

(e.g., staff time, materials, budget); activities undertaken (strategic planning processes, quality improvement projects, performance management implementation); and, if applicable, collaboration with partners or the community. (60 points)

2. Outcomes: Summarize the results of implementing these innovative techniques and how the LHD measured or evaluated results. (20 points)
3. Recommendations: What advice would you give other LHDs seeking to embark on a similar journey? (10 points)
4. Lessons learned (10 points)

Award recipients will be recognized at the 2018 NACCHO Annual conference, July 10–12 in New Orleans.
