

Get Involved with NACCHO!

Learn more about how you can stay up-to-date with NACCHO news, resources, and announcements.

Blogs

NACCHO's blogs feature stories from the field, updates and information from NACCHO's programmatic portfolios, and other helpful resources.

Blogs from NACCHO's Infectious Disease portfolio feature local health department stories, resource round-ups for infectious disease outbreaks and alerts, training and educational opportunities, funding opportunities, and more.

Scan to learn more, or visit:
<http://www.naccho.org/communications/publications>

Newsletters

NACCHO's newsletters feature news, tools, resources, and information about upcoming events and webinars across a variety of topics in the field.

The Transmission Digest is NACCHO's monthly infectious disease newsletter that features tools, resources, and news from NACCHO and other organizations to help local public health manage and respond to timely infectious disease threats.

Scan to learn more, or visit:
<http://www.naccho.org/communications/publications>

Subject Matter Expert Advisory Workgroups

NACCHO's Subject Matter Expert Advisory Workgroups are a primary and recognized vehicle for identifying the opportunities and challenges facing local health departments and the field at large. NACCHO members from all areas of public health come together to explore the many facets of the field, from epidemiology to infectious disease prevention and control, and help NACCHO make the best decision in serving its members, and local public health.

The application period for NACCHO's Subject Matter Expert Advisory Workgroups opens annually in the spring.

Scan to learn more, or visit:
<http://www.naccho.org/membership/advisory-groups>

Get Involved with NACCHO!

Learn more about how you can stay up-to-date with NACCHO news, resources, and announcements.

Virtual Communities

NACCHO's Virtual Communities forum allows members to connect with one another, join discussions, view resource libraries, and stay informed on announcements and events. From the All Members Virtual Community to the Infection Prevention and Control Living Learning Network, there are a variety of communities you can participate in.

To join Virtual Communities, you must have a MyNACCHO account.

Scan to learn more, or visit: <https://virtualcommunities.naccho.org/>

Need help? Access NACCHO's Virtual Communities Guide by scanning below, or by visiting: https://www.naccho.org/uploads/downloadable-resources/Virtual-Communities_Guide-for-Members.pdf

Advocacy

Stay up-to-date on NACCHO government affairs, policy statements and letters, and other advocacy resources:

Scan to learn more, or visit: <http://www.naccho.org/advocacy/policy-and-advocacy>

Social Media

NACCHO regularly shares news and opportunities through our social media. Follow us so you don't miss an update!

 facebook.com/NACCHOHQ

 instagram.com/nacchoalerts

 twitter.com/nacchoalerts

 linkedin.com/company/NACCHO